Harrod, Williams Tell of Finding Redfern, Held Captive by Indian Tribe

American Aviator, Who Fell in 1927, Not Allowed to Escape by Savages Who Consider Him a God.

ON CRUTCHES

Redfern Broke Arms and Legs in Crash. Attended by Medicine Men of Tribe.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 20 (AP).—Alfred Harrod, newspaperman of Paramaribo, declares today that he and Art Williams, American pilot, had found the long-missing Paul Redfern alive in the Tumuc Humac Mountains in western Guiana.

The fliers said they were forced to leave Redfern in the hands of an Indian tribe which would not permit him to escape.

Harrod said Redfern was crippled as the result of the crash which, on August 26, 1927, ended his attempt to make a solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro.

Harrod and Williams returned to civilization after a fight into the back country in an effort to locate the American. Their story tends to corroborate one told months ago by Tom Roch, German-American explorer.

Held in Awe

Redfern, all three said, is the captive of a wild Indian tribe which holds him in awe because he came out of the skies but which will not let him escape.

Harrod said that after he and Williams flew into the interior, they saw remains of Redfern's plane hanging on a branch of a large tree.

Later, they found the missing American, dressed in ragged undershirt and drawers.

As they chatted with him, they said, 500 Indians with poisoned spears and other weapons surrounded them.

"When the Indians saw we intended to take Redfern away," said Harrod, "they threatened us with spears."

"On Redfern's advice we left, waiting four days in the district in the hope of effecting a rescue, but eventually we had to return without him."

Broken Bones

Harrod said Redfern's arms and legs were broken in the crash of his plane but that medicine men had set the bones. He said Redfern walked with crutches.

Paul Rinaldo Redfern of Savannah, Ga., was 25 years old when he took off from Brunswick, Ga., August 25, 1927, on an attempt to fly non-stop to Rio de Janeiro.

His plane was last sighted on the following day 300 miles east of the Bahamas.

Redfern's wife, Gertrude, who lives with her parents in Toledo, O., long has believed that her husband is alive.

The Elbert S. Ward Post of the American Legion, Cristobal, Canal Zone, has an expedition in British Guiana at the present time trying to find Redfern.

17 Persons Held in Insurance Racket

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—Seventeen persons were under arrest today and police sought 14 others in a drive to smash a $500,000 insurance racket statewide.

The 17th, Philip Kleinman, 45, of 15 Highland avenue, Ossining, N. Y., a furniture dealer, was arrested early today.

Sixteen persons, including two physicians and five women, were arrested last night after they were indicted with 14 others as alleged participants in the swindle.

District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan said the defendants, most of whom are residents of Brooklyn, had defrauded nearly 140 insurance companies by insuring a number of sick and aged persons without their knowledge.

AIMEE FACES $400,000 SLANDER SUIT IN WEST

Los Angeles, Feb. 20 (AP).—Aimee Semple McPherson, blonde evangelist, prepared today to fight a $400,000 slander suit filed against her by her former press agent at Anaheim, Temple.

William Denton, 24, ex-show girl, signed the complaint, accusing Mrs. McPherson of injuring her reputation February 19. The plaintiff charged Mrs. McPherson, within the hearing of two other women at the temple, had told her she looked like an immoral character and addressed her as "a coarse and common woman."

Later, Mike Denton asserted, the pastor berated her as "a devil out of Hell, not a Christian and only a temptress of Satan."

The intense cold weather that has prevailed since January 19, caused a break in the water main on Main street, between Mountain and Broadway avenues, which was reported to the water department.

Vly Road Opened Last Night As Residents Pleaded For Aid To Save Starving Stock On Farms

Snowed in Since Last Friday, Say The Vly Residents—Claim Lack of Food for Chickens and Cows Causes Critical Situation—Sheriff Finds Road Opened Yesterday After Town Plow Was Repaired.

Macdon Day, 19-year-old girl who lived her home as Baltimore, Md., was arrested in Richmond, Va., for charges of stealing $118. She said she had worn masculine garb five years because it protected her in her work as a cosmetic salesman. (Associated Press Photo)

A pathetic appeal for food from "The People of This Place, The Vly, N. Y.," was received this morning by The Freeman, in which the claim is made that this little settlement is snowed in and has been since last Friday, February 14, and "we can't get out and no one can get to us."

Sheriff Molyneux and a Freeman reporter made a tour of the Vly section this morning and found that a plow had been through last night, so that everyone was being provided with food, with the exception of a single place where an elderly farmer lived. This man was in no immediate danger, it was said.

Information was obtained that the town plowing equipment had broken down and its failure to function was responsible for the delay in clearing the road.

The appeal stated that the farmers have been unable to get feed for chickens and stock on their farms—"We don't know just what is the matter, but we do know that we need help."

The letter continued: "We have had mail once and the mail man had an awful time to get through. I see by your paper that the county roads are all open. This is not so, for we know all the roads are not open up here."

County Superintendent of Highway Loughran this morning said that he understood that the road to the Vly was blocked, but that the snow which had not been moved was on a section of the road which was cared for by the town highway department and not the county. He stated that the town department was making every effort to get the road open. Mr. Loughran estimated that the trouble was in a section of town road connecting two sections of macadam which had been opened by the county department.

The Vly letter requested that The Freeman give publicity to the plight of these people in the hope that outside aid might be brought to open up the road so that the farmers will not lose their chickens and cows. With the opening of the road last night all danger of a food shortage disappeared.

MCCOY RECOVERING FROM AMPUTATION IN MID-ARM

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 20 (AP).—Surgeons said John McCoy, 47, whose right arm was amputated as he hung from a crane 50 feet above the ground, apparently was recovering today. The hospital said he had a very good night.

Dr. L. Cillmor Long, with one foot on a rung of a 50-foot ladder, and the other in a rope loop suspended from the crane by freemen, amputated McCoy's arm just below the shoulder with a mechanic's saw yesterday.

The report added that the patient "recovered immediately after the case was settled with his testimony."

The daily average population of the hospital last year fell from 2,600 to 2,022.

3 Cents Per Day Cost Of Complete Hospital Care Is New Program

Kiwanis Hears Frank Van Dyk, Director of Associated Hospital Service, Tell of Plan Working Since Last May.

90 CENTS PER MONTH

Small Regular Fee Permits Treatment of Ailments in More Than 170 Hospitals.

New York's three-cents-a-day plan for hospital care will equal London's first year record of 65,500 members in its Hospital Saving Association. Frank Van Dyk, executive director of the Associated Hospital Service of New York told members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club at its meeting today at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The speaker was brought here through the efforts of Dr. Charles Parsons.

"When the three-cents-a-day plan began operations last May," Mr. Van Dyk said, "it was thought that an enrollment of 25,000 the first year would represent satisfactory progress. At the present time more than 50,000 New Yorkers have taken advantage of this low-cost means of assuring themselves of hospital care when they need it."

For payments of 90 cents a month or $10 a year, members of the three-cents-a-day plan are entitled to 21 days of semi-private hospital care in more than 170 hospitals in the metropolitan area.

Those Eligible
Anyone working or living within the metropolitan area may join, provided they are not more than 65 and in normal health.

When a member needs hospital care, he is admitted to a hospital at which his own doctor is privileged to practice and pays his own physician or surgeon direct.

Benefits while in the hospital cover bed and board in a semi-private room, general nursing care, use of the operating room, anesthesia when administered by a hospital employee, medications and dressings, laboratory tests, ordinary X-rays, and all other customary routine medication and hospital service.

Maternity care is also available after the patient has been a member for ten months.

Private Room

A private room can be obtained by paying the hospital the difference between the private room cost and a credit on semi-private accommodations.

"There is no red tape when a member needs hospital care," Mr. Van Dyk said. "Each member has an identification card which is turned over to the hospital on admission. When a member leaves the hospital, he signs the hospital's bill form showing the services rendered and after the bill is paid by the plan, he receives a copy of the hospital bill marked 'paid in full by the Associated Hospital Service of New York.'"

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—Business houses in downtown Utica opened their doors to customers and 4,000 employees today after a two-day shutdown brought about by a series of underground gas explosions. Traffic was barred from the main business intersection, however. Telephone, electric, gas and water crews descended into excavations to mend broken wires and lay new pipes.

4-Alarm Fire

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—A four-alarm fire in a six-story brick building occupied by a furniture store and warehouse sent families in nearby tenements fleeing to the street early today and caused damage estimated at $200,000. More than 100 passengers aboard a Fifth avenue elevated train were near panic when the train stalled on the tracks in front of the blazing structure. An emergency crew finally succeeded in moving the train out of danger.

Gas Fells 2 Nurses In Operating Room At Woburn Hospital

Woburn, Mass., Feb. 20 (AP).—Gas felled two nurses, partly overcame a third, and rendered the operating physician almost unconscious during the delivery of a baby in the operating room of a Woburn hospital last night.

A nurse swung open the doors of the operating room at the Chaote Memorial Hospital and staggered out to tell others that two nurses were unconscious on the floor inside and that Dr. Thomas F. Halpin was on the verge of collapse.

The fresh blast of air from the open doors helped revive Dr. Halpin. Another doctor was summoned but before he arrived Dr. Halpin had struggled through the delivery. Neither mother nor child appeared to suffer any lasting ill effects from the experience.

Dr. Halpin, still ill today, said he believed the room had been filled with carbon monoxide gas, but ventured no opinion as to its origin. He said the operating room had been closed and that engineers would seek to discover the source of the fumes.

"I first became aware of a severe headache," Dr. Halpin said, "and I couldn't breathe because of a sharp pain in my chest."

"I turned to one of the nurses. I was going to ask her to get me a chair. As I was trying to speak to her she fell down on the floor."

"Just then the nurse on the other side of the operating table collapsed."

"The third nurse staggered out of the room. She was near collapse, herself. She pushed open the large doors into the operating room. There was a blast of fresh air. I felt great."

"I was partly overcome. She got more help and more nurses came and they sent for another doctor. And then I completed the delivery. I didn't notice what caused the gas. I really didn't feel I ought to know much about what was going on. I was so sick."

"It was a terrible experience."

Alleged Confession Made by Cannon Allowed as Evidence

Toughkepsie, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP).—An alleged confession made to authorities by Edward A. Cannon, 27-year-old son of a prominent local family, after the New Year's party death of pretty Hilda Price, 19-year-old waitress, was admitted as evidence in the first degree murder trial of Cannon here today.

Introduction of the purported confession followed an hour's battle between the prosecution, which contends Cannon struck the girl over the head before attacking her, and the defense, which holds she suffered the fatal injuries in a fall from Cannon's automobile. Introduced also was a preliminary statement said to have been made by Cannon which he did not sign.

Dr. Howard P. Carpenter, deputy county medical examiner, who testified yesterday Miss Price's injuries had been caused by some blunt object and could not have been received in a fall from a moving car, was cross examined at length today by L. Brandt Muckenhoupt, defense counsel, but his statement was not materially changed.

The first American officer to fly over the enemy lines in the World War, Mitchell returned to the peace army command of the aviation policies of both the war and navy departments.

Hauptmann Displays Visible Torment When Leibowitz Shows Him the Chair; Says He Understands Case is Lost

"OUTLOOK IS DARK"

C. Lloyd Fisher Carries on Fight; Leibowitz Hints He Thinks Hauptmann is Guilty.

By PAT MC GRADY (Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20 (AP).—The electric chair in which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been doomed to die the week of March 30 was shown to him in a dramatic episode in the death house yesterday, it was learned today.

Hauptmann peered into the death chamber during the interview with Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney, and C. Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel.

"Hauptmann was like a caged animal," said a person who was present at the interview.

"He continually grasped the bars of his cell with white, clenched fists, and thrust his face between the bars."

"During the interview Leibowitz insisted that a wire screen be removed from behind Hauptmann's cell. When this was done, Hauptmann could reach through the bars and touch the green door leading to the execution chamber and by extending his hand could look through the little peephole in the door."

"Leibowitz opened the peephole and Hauptmann looked through. He stared at the electric chair for a minute and blanched. He shivered and sighed and lost his voice momentarily, but no tears came to his eyes."

"Hauptmann's date of execution was set yesterday for the week of March 30."

The New York attorney who had consented to aid Hauptmann if the convicted kidnaper-slayer of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's first-born son would "tell the whole truth," withdrew from the case last night.

In the eight days that Leibowitz had investigated the case, he had subjected Hauptmann to questioning so intensive that at least once the convicted man broke into tears.

But although Hauptmann stood fastly refused to confess any part in the crime, Leibowitz is severing his connection with the case, asserted only yesterday.

His only salutation as matters now stand now lies in his belief in a clean break of whatever future part he may have had in the case."

"I want no further part in any of the case," Leibowitz said.

"I am not sure how I can save the interests of justice by any further participation."

Concerning C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, who is remaining in that capacity, Leibowitz said: "I don't know what he is doing. I don't know what he is doing. I don't know what he is doing."

"I don't know what he is doing. I don't know what he is doing. I don't know what he is doing."

Discover New Milk Quality

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 20.—The discovery of a new and previously unrecognized quality of milk was announced during Farm and Home Week at Cornell University by Dr. James A. Tobey, director of health service, the Borden Company, New York.

Recently completed investigations at the company's research laboratories at Bainbridge, New York, conducted by Dr. George C. Sipple, have revealed that one of the proteins of milk, the lactalbumin, increased the value of the richest-producing vitamin D, said Dr. Tobey. Milk has also been found to be a source of the new vitamin H recently isolated by scientists at Columbia University, according to the speaker, who stated that this food factor resembles vitamins A and G in milk because it is necessary for proper growth and good health.

Since laboratory animals, deprived of Vitamin H, he said, are reported to have lost their hair and to have suffered from serious skin diseases, the vitamin H derived from a diet liberally supplied with milk may be shown to have a favorable effect upon these important attributes of beauty. He pointed out, however, that the outstanding value of milk is its function as a well balanced and indispensable food for children and adults.

Central Trustees
Monthly Meeting Held
At Highland Monday

Highland, Feb. 19.—A delegation from the Oakes community consisting of Mrs. Chester Relyea, Mrs. William Halstead, Mrs. Howard Hagaman, Mrs. Florence Freer, Miss Frances Roberts, Mrs. Rose Quick, Mrs. Margaret Borquist, Mrs. Catherine Tuttle, Mrs. Frank Dawald, Mrs. Patrick Lanigan, Russell Tubbs, Orlando Freer, Edward Borquist, Sr., Fred Hagaman, Frank Dawald attended the February meeting of the trustees of the Central school system held at the high school Monday evening. Their interest lay in what the trustees intended to do with the Oakes school and the transportation of the pupils.

The president, Mrs. Jesse D. Rose, asked for the report of the committee. Philip T. Schantz, C. Imbrie Richards and the principal, A. Herbert Campbell, who had investigated several places including a garage of Robert Cummings, the old hotel property of Benny Terwilliger, and the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church. Some had plenty of room but lacked proper lighting or heat or toilet facilities. Highland Inn, belonging to Walter R. Seaman, was selected as having two rooms well suited because they had plenty of windows, heat and two toilets. These had been engaged and will be ready for use in a week's time, since seats must be placed in position and heat and lights put in readiness to use. It was thought advisable to place the small children coming from Oakes in the main building and send the fifth grade pupils to the Inn. Mr. Seaman has offered the use of his grounds in the rear of his home as playgrounds. In bringing up the matter of the Oakes school, the trustees were asked to consider the fact that it will be necessary for the bus to go down to the Oakes settlement, Dawald's or Keating's corner, for bus.

William H. Maynard, member of the board and who has the supervision of the Oakes school and who also is fire chief, estimated that it would cost from $5,000 to $5,000 to build the building into condition for use. He thanked the men present for their assistance at the school during the fire. Arthur R. Meritt, who was present as the insurance agent, suggested that the upper story of the building be removed and it be made into a one-story, two-room building and considered the cost more than $4,500. Principal Campbell gave the proposed changes to care for the pupils. Since the agriculture teacher, Milo P. Winchester, and his pupils were absent that week, his room was used for two days and then they had been distributed among the other grades. It is said there will be 22 children to come from Oakes by bus and some 15 from the Little Italy section, who will be told to meet the bus at the bridge circle. One mother present said there were 22 little children in the community who would be entering school in the next two years.

Miss Frances Roberts, a taxpayer of the district, was interested in whether it would be cheaper to repair the building or install the school at its former location at Oakes. She considered, she said, Highland had acquired the post office and then the school and thereby had come increased taxes. Oakes at one time was a thriving community. Because of the wait for insurance adjusters, it would be some time before repairs could start and as there was little more than four months of the school year left it was not deemed advisable to plan for the use of the building before fall. Mrs. Rose appointed William H. Maynard and Philip T. Schantz to look into the cost of repairs. There were complaints by some of the mothers as to the lack of drinking water since the spring was frozen over and that more cleaning was needed in the building. It is said now that smoke was noticeable the day before the fire.

Mrs. Rose reported that $36,087.82 of state aid money had been received and the balance previous to that was $1,815.55. Miss Elizabeth Young, physical director for the girls, gave the requirements of the state syllabus and told how it was carried out and of the corrective work which had been done and was in progress. This included flat feet, poor posture, slovenliness, acne, constipation, spine defects, underweight and overweight, heart action. Four weighings had been given since September. She gave examples of clog and tap dancing to show the difference and explained the benefits of both.

The trustees were asked for the use of the homemaker room for February 27 by the Boy Scouts as they wanted to put on a spaghetti supper that evening as a source of income. This request was refused since the trustees have made a ruling that benefits cannot be given in the school.

An executive session was held later when the trustees unanimously extended a request that the principal, A. Herbert Campbell, return for another year. Mr. Campbell, who came here from Red Hook, is completing his fourth year. Andrew W. Lent was the only member absent, and C. Imbrie Richards was appointed clerk in Mr. Lent's absence.

Child Delinquency Laid to Parents' Emotional Conflict

New York (AP)—Failure of parents to adjust their own emotional conflicts is blamed for their children's misbehavior in a survey just published by Dr. Marlan J. Fitz-Simmons of Columbia university.

Parents seek to satisfy their own emotional needs, Dr. Fitz-Simmons finds, by fostering dependency in their children. This, he says, encourages "jealous, temper tantrums, feelings of inferiority and insecurity, truancy, disobedience, lying, stealing and mental retardation."

By questioning 415 high school girls and 369 high school boys, Dr. Fitz-Simmons found that "spending time with his children, reading, talking, playing with them" is the most desired trait in a father. But "being a good cook and housekeeper" counts most in a mother.

Chameleon Uses Tongue to Snare Insect Dinner

The chameleon has five toes which are arranged in opposed sets on both fore and hind feet. Such equipment enables him to walk straight up a wall or upside down on the under side of a large leaf. Unique among lizards, he is extremely active tall that rolls downward in a flat spiral, and which he uses for clinging to twigs and vines. When angry or threatened, he becomes a fiery red or a brilliant orange in color, and puffs up like a toad.

The chameleon lives entirely on insects which he catches with his long and somewhat sticky tongue. This tongue is most astonishing to one who has never seen it, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times. At the free end, it is shaped like a club, and at the base it slips into a sheath that is located at the bottom of his throat. When insects are to be caught, he can shoot it out to a distance that is equal to more than half of his total length and return it like a rubber band to its original position. The dexterity with which he operates this wonderful instrument is almost too fast to follow with the naked eye. His eyes, too, are most extraordinary, because the two eyeballs move quite independently. One may be looking at an object behind him, while the other views one in front. Moreover, the eyeballs are almost completely united, leaving only a tiny, circular orifice through which the animal sees and which moves with the eyeball in its almost continual wanderings.

Lord Chancellor Defied King and Paid With Life

On December 21, 1178, in Chesham, London, was born Thomas Becket, son of a wealthy merchant. He was educated in London and Paris, and took up a commercial career. Then he turned to the church, and was ordained deacon, later becoming Arch-bishop of Canterbury.

In 1175 Henry II made Becket his Lord Chancellor. For seven years all went well, and Becket became famous for his magnificent display.

Then the See of Canterbury became vacant and Henry nominated Becket. But before long, observes a writer in Pearson's Weekly, he quarreled with the king over ecclesiastical privileges, and for six years lived in exile.

While Henry was in Normandy, peace was made but Becket's first action again enraged the king, who furiously demanded his death. Four knights crossed the channel and slew the archbishop in his cathedral on December 29, 1170.

Sinclair Lewis thought it "couldn't happen here," but it could. There would be no dictator in Washington, but there's one in Hollywood.

"Informal Monarch" Visits British Fair

London, Feb. 20 (AP)—The slight, fair-haired Edward VIII completed the first month of his reign today with public evidence that he has become Britain's "informal monarch."

The new king-emperor, whose rule began the instant his father, George V, died just before midnight, January 20, has settled down to his tasks with characteristic thoroughness.

The irrepressible informality which made Edward the best-loved Prince of Wales in Britain's history was again disclosed at his first public function since his accession—a visit yesterday to the British Industries Fair at Olympia.

Despite the court mourning for his father, he toured the stands in a record time for royal speed, often outdistancing his police escort.

Perspiring officials, evidently surprised by his majesty's keenness, could not help but laugh when the monarch paused before a socks display, pulled up his trousers and showed the hose salesman the kind of socks a king was wearing.

More chuckles arose when Edward stopped at a stand showing dress shirts made of paper, and asked the paper shirt maker if his wares "washed well."

Two Stolen Cars Found Abandoned

The Ford coupe of Miss Griselda Kuhlmann, one of the organizers employed by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and a Plymouth coach of Arthur Kelly of Saugerites were reported stolen last night.

The Ford car was stolen from in front of the shirt union headquarters in the Byrne building on Broadway, shortly after 10 o'clock last night, and the Kelly car was reported stolen in Saugerites shortly after midnight.

This morning the Kelly car was found abandoned on Athletic Field where it was hidden between the banks of snow where the street department has been dumping snow removed from the streets. It was found by employees of the Board of Public Works. Later in the morning the Saugerites police department reported that the Kuhlmann car had been found abandoned on Washington street in that village.

The local police department said this morning that there was a dance in Saugerites and believe that some one who wanted to attend the dance stole the Kuhlmann car and drove to Saugerites. The thief, however, realized that the theft of the car would be discovered and reported and rather than take a chance to drive it back to Kingston it was abandoned in Saugerites and the thief helped himself to the Kelly car to drive back to Kingston.

Milk Control Stirs Legislators, Action Awaits Farmers Views

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP)—A spirited new discussion of the future of state milk control stirred the New York Legislature today, but it was decided to defer action on the milk situation until farmers declared their views at a public hearing.

Leaders in both houses called a halt to actual work for the rest of the week, and the lawmakers moved homeward for the week-end as Governor Herbert H. Lehman prepared the draft of his appeal to the public in support of his anti-crime program.

This is expected to be given sometime over the week-end, probably on Sunday night, and will serve as a reply to the Assembly Republican majority's demand that the executive substantiate his charges that "powerful groups" are attempting to kill his drive against crime.

The governor does not intend to make any formal answer directly to the Assembly.

The milk control problem was formally injected into the legislative wars yesterday when a charge that dairy farmers are being "sold on the block" brought a statement from Assemblyman Howard N. Allen, chairman of the Assembly agriculture committee, that no decision on the dairy problem will be reached until farmers have a chance to express their views at a hearing.

The charge was made by Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves, only woman member of the Senate who hails from the dairy county of St. Lawrence, after she stormed into an executive meeting of Allen's committee to which, she said, she was uninvited.

After the meeting, Chairman Allen said "everything is wide open. Nothing will be done until a public hearing is held."

the other hand, they feel, may be unstable because of demands made on them by their families and the chance that they may leave and get married."

So it's the old story. The war and its industrial consequences may not have changed the relations of the sexes to each other and to industry so much as we have supposed.

EINSTEIN BEGINS AGAIN

Dr. Ludwig Silberstein, physicist at the University of Toronto, found a flaw in Einstein's field equation. The writer is not one of the 12 who alone completely understood Einstein's theories of matter and of relativity, but he knows a good sport when he sees one, and Einstein seems to qualify.

Before Dr. Silberstein's article telling of this "valley flaw" was published in the Physical Review, he showed it to Professor Einstein himself. The great mathematician immediately recognized the soundness of the criticism and set to work to correct his errors. What a different world this would be if statesmen and other leaders always accepted valid criticism of their work in this same spirit and promptly set about correcting their mistakes!

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

STOMACH COMPLAINTS.

An outstanding surgeon made the statement some years ago that when a patient complained of indigestion or gas on the stomach, he had the liver tested out to see if it removed poisons from the blood in the usual amount of time required and also had the gall bladder tested to see if it was emptying properly and in the usual time. For, in his opinion, most of the "stomach trouble" of which patients complain is due to a faulty liver or gall bladder.

Now the stomach has a great amount of work to do. It takes in to itself all kinds of food and liquids in very large and in very small amounts, sometimes as often as 5 to 8 times a day. It must prepare this food in such a way that the small intestine will accept it and further work on it, so that the blood can absorb it and use it for building up all parts of the body, supplying digestive and other juices, and making all the body processes work.

And yet the stomach itself doesn't readily get out of order. It is composed of strong muscular coats which churn up the food with the stomach digestive juices and when the food is "ready" it drives it forward with these strong muscles into the small intestine.

But as mentioned above the stomach can be affected by other organs—liver, gall bladder, small and large intestine—which seem to "loaf" or back-up in their work and the stomach is affected and blamed for the disturbance.

Thus Dr. Melvin Price, leamings professor of hygiene, Oregon State College, says:

The stomach is often blamed for trouble which lies in other parts of the body. Curious so-called stomach trouble is more often a question of curing or treating some other organ or system. Stomach complaints are common. In fact if one is ill at all, a derangement in the digestive system is almost certain to appear but in four cases out of five there is nothing wrong with the stomach. The trouble is usually somewhere else in the nervous system, the appendix, the gall bladder, the lungs, the kidneys, the liver or the intestines; or perhaps there is nothing wrong at all.

The point then is that stomach ailments do occur—inflammation of the lining, ulcers, and even cancer—but four times out of five the real trouble is elsewhere, should be searched for, and corrected.

THE BOOMERANG CLUB

ALLEGORICAL. Although Roger (Henry) Bassington-French was a member of the Boomerang Club, Dr. Nicholson was not. Dr. Nicholson was not a member of the Boomerang Club, although Roger (Henry) Bassington-French was a member of the Boomerang Club.

Chapter 11. DEATH. Roger looked at Frankie. "This is a bit awkward," he said. "Very awkward indeed."

"Once Sylvia has made her mind up she can be obstinate as the devil." They sat down again on the garden seat and went into the matter carefully. Roger agreed with Frankie that to tell the whole story to Sylvia would be a mistake. The best plan, in his opinion, would be to tackle the doctor.

"But what are you going to say exactly?" "I don't know that I shall say much—but I shall hit a good deal. At any rate, I agree with you about one thing—Henry mustn't go to the Grange. Even if we come right out in the open, we've got to stop that."

Roger struck the glass a heavy blow.

"We give the whole show away if we do," Frankie reminded him. "I know. That's why we've got to try everything else first. Curse Sylvia, why must she turn obstinate just at this minute?"

"It shows the power of the man," Frankie said. "Yes, you know, it inclines me to believe that, evidence or no evidence, you may be right about him after all—What's that?"

They both sprang up. "It sounded like a shot," said Frankie. "From the house."

They looked at each other, then raced towards the building. They went in by the French window of the drawing-room and passed through into the hall. Sylvia Bassington-French was standing there, her face white as paper.

"Did you hear?" she said. "It was a shot—from Henry's study?" She swayed, and Roger put an arm around her to steady her. Frankie went to the study door and turned the handle.

"It's locked," she said. "The window," said Roger. He deposited Sylvia, who was in a half-fainting condition, on a convenient settee and raced out again through the drawing-room, Frankie on his heels.

They went round the house till they came to the study window. It was closed but they put their faces close to the glass and peered in. The sun was setting and there was not much light—but they could see plainly enough.

HENRY BASSINGTON-FRENCH

French was lying sprawled out across his desk. There was a bullet wound plainly visible in his temple, and a revolver lay on the floor where it had dropped from his hand.

"He's shot himself," said Frankie. "How ghastly..."

"Stand back a little," said Roger. "I'm going to break the window." He wrapped his hand in his coat and struck the pane of glass a heavy blow that shattered it. Roger picked up the pieces carefully, then he and Frankie stepped into the room. As they did so, Mrs. Bassington-French and Dr. Nicholson came hurrying along the terrace.

"Here's the Doctor," said Sylvia. "Has just come. Has—has anything happened to Henry?"

Then she saw the sprawling figure and uttered a cry.

Roger stepped quickly out again through the window, and Dr. Nicholson thrust Sylvia into his arms.

"Take her away," he said briefly. "Look after her. Give her some brandy if she'll take it. Don't let her see more than you can help."

He himself stepped through the window and joined Frankie. "This is a tragic business," he said. "Poor fellow. So he felt he couldn't face the music. Too bad. Too bad."

He bent over the body, then straightened himself up again. "Nothing to be done. Death must have been instantaneous. I wonder if he wrote something first. They usually do."

Frankie advanced till he stood beside them. A piece of paper with a few scrawled words on it, evidently freshly written, lay at Bassington-French's elbow. Their purpose was clear enough.

"I feel this is the best way out (Henry Bassington-French had written) This fatal habit has taken too great a hold on me for me to fight it now. Want to do the best I can for Sylvia—Sylvia and Tommy. Good-bye you both, my dears. Forgive me."

Frankie felt a lump rise in her throat. "We mustn't touch anything," said Dr. Nicholson. "There will have to be an inquest, of course. We must ring up the police."

In obedience to his gesture Frankie went towards the door. Then she stopped.

"The key's not in the lock," she said. "No? Perhaps it's in his pocket."

He knelt down, investigating delicately. From the dead man's coat pocket he drew out a key. He tried it in the lock and it fitted. Together they passed out into the hall. Dr. Nicholson went straight to the telephone.

Frankie, her knees shaking under her, felt suddenly sick.

Ulster-Greene Scouts Have Busy Season

Council Activities.

The past two weeks has been a busy time for the Scout Troops in five of the seven districts of the Ulster-Greene Council with the conducting of the annual indoor rallies. The past week the Southern, Saugerties and Northern districts had their rallies and in all cases were enthusiastically participated in and large numbers of parents and friends witnessed the various events.

This past week many of the Scout Troops throughout the two counties have been busy working in cooperation with the various sportsman associations in the distribution of food for birds and other game.

Another new Scout Troop is being added to the ever growing number of troops in the Ulster-Greene, B. S. A., being Troop No. 16, sponsored by the Women's Club of Wallkill and will be installed at the evening service of the Reformed Church in Wallkill on Sunday evening, February 23. The troop committee are E. C. Masten, chairman; Halsey F. Sherwood, L. C. Edsall, J. D. Schuber and Herbert DuBois. The Scoutmaster is Carlisle Upright. The Scouts are Arthur Barry, Elbert Clark, John Roach, Ralph Sherwood, Albert Woessner, Carl Brach, George Christian, Norman Clark, Jr., Howard Terwilliger, Robert Terwilliger, Fred Richter and Robert Richter.

On Wednesday morning, February 25, a new Scout Troop in the village of Saugerties known as Troop No. 36, will be installed. This troop is sponsored by the faculty of the high school and the installation will take place at the morning assembly. The chairman of the troop committee is Superintendent Grant Morse and the Scoutmaster is Prof. Hall.

On February 27, Fred Van Voorhis, chairman of the camp committee, L. M. Cahill, camp director, and Scout Executive Wright will attend a camp conference which will take place in the University Club at Albany. The purpose of this conference is to complete plans for summer camping, including the operation of a regular summer camp and also troop camps throughout the area.

Friday, February 28, will bring the western district rally at the town hall in Allaben, when all troops of the western district will participate.

The Rondout Valley district will have their first district rally in Newburgh Hall on Saturday afternoon and evening, February 29.

Troop 26

The regular weekly business meeting of Boy Scouts of Troop 26 was held Tuesday evening, February 18, instead of Monday, February 17, because of other business in the church hall on Monday.

Upon the absence of the assistant scoutmaster the meeting was opened by Vincent Secor, senior patrol leader, at 7:10 o'clock in the new regular order. The drill was supervised by Vincent Secor and Mr. Goertz, scoutmaster. The drill of this meeting was a big improvement over the drill of the last meeting, lasting from 7:15 o'clock until 7:35 o'clock.

At this meeting the scoutmaster asked the boys if they would do something for the church. The boys, thinking this in terms of a good turn, immediately raised their hands. The following list is the names of the fellows that volunteered. From the Panther Patrol—William Windrum, Walter Clark and Kenneth Douglas; from the Iroquois Patrol—William Ferguson, Warren Ferguson and Joseph Mallia; from Black Bear Patrol—Carl Lanza, Joseph Clark, and John Coniglio; from Lion Patrol—Jack Reynolds, Robert Clark and Jack Potter. The good turn being delivering penny jars for the church.

Mr. Goertz also asked the boys if they would like to take a trip around to different places to see how electricity is made, generated and distributed. This question enthused the boys very much. In the near future Mr. Goertz will obtain a guide to describe the different processes to the fellows, and the boys shall take this trip.

At 8 o'clock the fellows were divided into their different classes. In these classes the lower classmen are taught and some passed by the upper classmen.

The class period lasted until 8:45 o'clock.

The following are the fellows who passed tests: Knits—Jack Reynolds, Jack Potter and Jack Coniglio; history of flag—Joseph Mallia; oath and laws—Jack Reynolds and Jack Coniglio; safety—Robert Clark; knife and hatchet—Joseph Clark.

At 9 o'clock the troop was dismissed after the colors were placed and the Boy Scout Benediction said in unison.

At this time the fellows took part in a few games led by Mr. Goertz, the scoutmaster.

At 9:30 o'clock the fellows departed for their homes.

Up to this time the four patrols have been working hard to win a contest, because the losers have to serve at a banquet. The contest is to end when the first patrol reaches 250 points. They stand as follows: Lions are ahead with 102 points, Black Bears following with 99 points, Panthers are third with 95 points and the end is upheld by the Iroquois with 83 points.

BOBBY CRAFT CHOSEN FOR NEWBURGH AMATEUR CONTEST

In addition the grand prize winner Monday night will receive a professional engagement at the Ritz Theatre, Newburgh, and an appearance on a national amateur radio broadcast.

WHEN CHORES ARE DONE BROTHERS DIG FOR GOLD

Lincolnton, Ga. (AP)—Earl and Alice Norman believe in diversification of farming interests, so they turned to gold mining as a sideline—profitably.

When the usual chores of agriculture do not demand their energies, they dig gold, right on the old farmplace.

It started after they had found gold particles on top of the ground following hard rains.

Then they struck a vein 22 feet deep, obtained a small stamp mill and already have marketed several tons of gold ore.

GOOD GARDENING

11. Watering

Once your garden is planted and is a good concern, don't go into it every night with the hose, even if it needs water. Frequent light sprinkling is injurious. The best thing is to soak the soil thoroughly about once a week, preferably during the evening, and then loosen the surface with a rake or hoe as soon as it's dry enough. A good method is to dig slight furrows along the rows of plants and let the water flow gently down the furrows. After the water has soaked in, the furrows should be covered with dry soil to prevent evaporation. Moisture feeds upward in soil as does oil in a lamp wick.

Tomorrow—What to Plant.

Vandenberg Considered Favorite If Republicans Need 'Dark Horse'

This is the second in a series of six daily articles discussing the backgrounds of possibilities for the Republican presidential nomination.

By KIRKE SIMPSON

Washington (AP)—Even before the Roosevelt administration was well settled in Washington, Arthur H. Vandenberg was being talked about as a possible presidential nomination. Whoever may be considered first choice today for Republican honors, the Michigan senator has this distinction: He was first in the field. His survival of the 1934 Roosevelt landslide helped place him there.

Senator Vandenberg smilingly waved aside those suggestions by colleagues that he might like to be a candidate.

A varied political experience, founded on a newspaper career that included service in congressional press galleries, taught him long ago the danger of premature presidential boasts. They invite concerted opposition from other under-cover aspirants.

Geographically "Right" The Michigan senator carried on, however, with a nicely adjusted liberal-conservative or conservative-liberal attitude toward the "New Deal" as the Roosevelt program unfolded. Many observers rate him today as favorite if a "dark horse" nomination is to be made.

Among Vandenberg political assets such observers include things other than his tempered attitude toward "New Deal" objectives and even some of its methods—his unquestionably valuable geographical situation as a native born Michigan man, and the wealth of politico-journalistic experience that sharpens his insight into popular moods.

Vandenberg is just over the half-century mark. He is a wide-shouldered, deep-chested man who stands straight. His dark hair is heavily shot with gray. He possesses as booming a voice as the Senate knows, a good voice for stump or radio.

Eloquent Speaker From natural talent and from his training as a political reporter and at editorial desks, Vandenberg has developed a facility, even an eloquence, in speech rare these days in the Senate. He has, too, a proved capacity for inducing off the Senate floor such compromises as alone

Geography Favors His Cause

By surviving the 1934 Roosevelt landslide, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan became a prominent possibility for the Republican presidential nomination. He has turned aside all suggestions, however, that he would like to be a candidate.

make legislation possible in an atmosphere of seeming unbreakable deadlock.

All these are of decided value to a President.

In appearance and in newspaper background there are many things about Senator Vandenberg to invite a Harding parallel. And there are many things about the Republican party situation today to recall what happened at Chicago in 1920 to make an Ohio senator the beneficiary of the deadlock between other avowed candidates for the nomination.

Possibilities Of Rift

A conservative-liberal, east-west rift has clouded Republican party affairs since before 1912. It looms again over Cleveland in the activities of former President Hoover and of Senator Borah, whatever their personal ambitions may be. If the answer at Cleveland is to be compromise, Vandenberg of Michigan may find himself in the full glare of the political spotlight.

Tomorrow—Herbert Hoover.

The essays read were those written by Alberta Loughran, fourth grade; Madge Johnston, fifth grade; Helen Slater, sixth grade; Elbert Loughran, seventh grade, and Lois Meekes, eighth grade.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER TORGES, JR.

Albany, Feb. 20 (Special)—A clemency hearing on the life of a man condemned to die is one of the most difficult duties that a governor of this state has to perform.

It is in the law that all persons condemned to die shall have the right to appeal through the chief executive, but the law also provides for a death penalty for certain crimes.

Yesterday in the executive outer chamber, several times as large as the private office of the governor, a typical hearing was held.

Mrs. Lehman and Mrs. Pollett attended this hearing. They are open to the public.

The case was that of the people against Francis Flynn, who has been convicted of first degree murder for killing a six-year-old girl by drowning in his apartment. The prosecution charged rape before the drowning, but the defense counsel, in its plea for clemency, declared that this latter act had never been committed.

During the hour of the hearing both sides briefly reviewed the case. The lawyer of the governor and lieutenant-governor were shown tightly in their concentration of what was being said. There were no interruptions by the state heads as the reviewed testimony was presented.

Three relatives of the condemned slayer Flynn, of Astoria, were present. His 17-year-old daughter, his sister, and his aunt. None showed any signs of emotionalism as some of the sickening details were brought out.

It was pointed out by the defense counsel that Flynn had an insane aunt, two uncles that committed suicide, and a father subject to epileptic.

The prisoner, now at Sing Sing, had been examined by four alienists and is regarded as legally sane.

Such a hearing as this is part of the governor's duties. With him and him alone now rests the fate of this prisoner. Governor Lehman, as is his custom, will review the two volumes of testimony that already has been viewed by the Court of Appeals.

Little progress was made in law-making yesterday although both chambers had full working days. In the Assembly Speaker Ives complained about certain members leaving for home too soon, and reprimanded his charges for not spending Wednesday in Albany when there was work to be done.

One measure acted on favorably by the Senate committee on motor vehicles was the McNaboe bill to prohibit sale of gasoline by filling station attendants to intoxicated persons.

There is some doubt as to passage of the measure, however, as too much burden will be placed upon the filling station attendant.

If a customer appears sober to the attendant and buys some gasoline only to crack up a few minutes later and ultimately is convicted for drunken driving, the attendant has violated a law for having sold gasoline.

Legislators are entirely in sympathy with the idea, but some point out this danger. On the other hand, there are certain petroleum companies that forbid attendants to sell gasoline to drunken drivers, but there is no legal entanglement here. It is not likely that a scrupulous attendant would sell gas to any one who is positively "soused", but the fellow who has had "just a few" is regarded as equally dangerous on the highway.

The bill by J. Edward Conway, Ulster county representative, to put cases of intoxicated driving with grand juries instead of jury trials is still resting in committee. With the vast program of legislation coming from members of both parties in either chamber it is expected that the Conway bill will at least be reported out of committee to run the gauntlet of voting on the open floor.

One legislative investigating committee that at its suggestion caused a good deal of laughter but none the less presents a serious problem is that of finding out why there is such a "charge" on the so-called "French" telephones.

These single instruments are believed manufactured at a lower cost than the old-fashioned telephone yet there is a surcharge of 15 cents each month made on them so that in course of several months a consumer pays for them and continued rents nets the telephone company an enormous profit.

Many private citizens who use either this type of instrument and the old-fashioned ones have from time to time registered indignation over what they consider excessive rental fees.

Erastus Corning, 2nd, newly elected assemblyman from Albany's first district, was asked to explain something of his Y. W. C. A. bill on third reading, calendar by Assemblyman Laurons M. Hamilton. Because of Mr. Hamilton's many queries on different matters Mr. Corning, not hesitating to give a full answer, prefaced his remarks with, "As I am a new member it is still a novelty to me to answer the gentleman (Hamilton) from Rockland. Young Corning got a good laugh from his side of the aisle at snubbing the experienced Hamilton.

"The fathers intended that this should be a civil government. It was no part of their plan that it should ever be a business organization."—Justice Sutherland.

Hudson Port Authority Bill Is Introduced

Albany, Feb. 20 (Special)—A measure to establish the Hudson River Industrial and Port Authority was jointly sponsored by Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, and Assemblyman Howard N. Newhall, of Pawling in their respective chambers today.

This bill may affect Kingston indirectly, but there is no close association because last year an amendment by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of that city, was discarded when he offered a proposal to include Kingston as a possible site for establishment of a central port on the Hudson river.

Five members of the commission, serving without pay for five years, are to be appointed by the governor under the Desmond-Allen bill, two members to be chosen from Newburgh and Poughkeepsie and one from Beacon.

LeGrand W. Pellett, of Newburgh, chairman of the Hudson River Port Survey Commission, filed the report last Saturday with the Legislature. Recommendations of this report are included in the proposed legislation of today.

They follow: (1) Attached. (2) A commission of five members, appointed by the governor, to serve without pay for five years. One member would be from Beacon and two each from Poughkeepsie and Newburgh. (3) Creation of an industrial and port district embracing the three cities.

(4) An economic study of the district to formulate a long term program for industrial expansion.

(5) Maximum utilization of the district's assets in the way of deep water by coordinating development of the port with the growth of industry.

(6) Power to confer with various government and private officials in order to improve industrial and port facilities. (7) Power to contract with any municipality, in the district for the construction of port facilities owned by such municipality. (8) Power to regulate and supervise construction and operation of private port facilities.

(9) Power to create and maintain a traffic and industrial bureau. In a joint statement, Senator Desmond and Assemblyman Allen said "The Newburgh-Poughkeepsie-Beacon district has the deep water asset of the Hudson river and excellent river frontage considered excellent for industrial purposes. Forum at "Y" Sunday Evening

Sunday evening at the Y M C A. the fourth in a series of fireside forums will be held. The subject of this week's forum will deal with co-operatives, which have proved so successful in Europe and which are beginning to appear in America. The leader of the forum will be Bertram B. Fowler of New York city, who in this week's issue of Colliers has written an article entitled "Buying at a Profit." Mr. Bertram represents the Eastern States Co-operative League and is the leading journalist of the organization. His articles have appeared in the Christian Science Monitor Forum and other leader periodicals.

These forums are held bi-weekly at the Y. M. C. A. and are proving very popular. The last one was attended by approximately 65 people. The discussions are held in the large front room of the "Y," those attending the forum being grouped around the fireplace in the room, the only light being that shed by the fire in the fireplace. Refreshments are served following the discussion. All of these forums are open to the general public, no admission being charged. The forums are made possible through the joint efforts of the Ulster County Christian Youth Council and the Young Men's Christian Association.

Hollywood Starts Annual Guessing Game—Which Stars Will Win The 'Gilded Oscars'?

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD — If precedent holds true, the movie academy's members will find selection of a "leading" actor and actress for 1935 much simpler this year.

This is true despite the larger number of nominations. In the past, six players — three women, three men — were named as candidates. This year, through a provision in the "awards of merit" rules, four actors and six actresses appear, each with one performance listed. Some of them received votes on two or more films, equaling or exceeding the third highest vote for any single performance, and "got in" under the rules.

Precedent rules out Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, Claudette Colbert and Katharine Hepburn. All are past winners, and never in the eight award years has a player taken home a second gilded Oscar. (Oscar is Hollywood's pet name for the statuette to be dispensed at the annual dinner March 6.)

McLaglen And Tone

If this holds true, the men's contest is between Victor McLaglen and Franchot Tone. McLaglen for "The Informer" is considered virtually a sure winner over Tone's several excellent portrayals, notably in "Mutiny on the Bounty."

The women's race, even omitting Misses Colbert and Hepburn, should be closer. Elisabeth Bergner ("Escape Me Never") would not be the first foreign player in a British film to take Hollywood's vote of praise. Charles Laughton did it. Bette Davis came close last year, and "Dangereux" plus other films of hers might turn the trick now. Miriam Hopkins offers the only technicolor performance in "Becky Sharp," but that is conceded no advantage over Marie Oberon ("The Dark Angel") or the others.

Many academicians are guessing that "The Informer" is the "sure thing" for outstanding production, and John Ford for outstanding director.

Carbo Not On List

An interesting sidelight on the player selections is the absence of Greta Garbo from the list. Her performance in "Anna Karenina" rated honors in some selections, but in her adopted home town the opinion was different.

The academy in its various awards considers all films shown in Los Angeles (except at previews) up to midnight of December 31 each year. Thus "Captain Blood," opening New Year's Eve here, made the candidate list for production, and "Dangereux," released here Christmas Day, entitled Bette Davis to consideration.

This time and place limit excludes from consideration pictures like "A Tale of Two Cities" (a personal choice for a three-best list), which was released elsewhere but not in Los Angeles in 1935, and Paul Muni's "Louis Pasteur," which won favor at previews but is a 1936 release.

At The Theatres

Today
Broadway: "Whipsaw." Myrna Loy returns to the screen following a European vacation and finds herself in a melodrama of monstrous proportions to start out her new series of pictures. The story centers around a gang of jewel thieves, not the small time variety, but gentlemen who do big things in a big way. Miss Loy is their accomplice and Spencer Tracy is a federal man who tags her about in the hope of putting his finger on the whole outfit. Everything goes smoothly until the two fall in love and that hinders and complicates the work of both of them. It's lively screen fare, well directed and capably acted. Sam Wood directed and others in the cast include: Harve Stephens, Robert Warwick, George Renevent, William Harrigan, J. Anthony Hughes and Charles Irwin.

Kingston: "Hi Gaucho" and "The Lone Wolf Returns." Against an early 19th century background, the opening feature at the Kingston tells of a love between a low bred gaucho of the Argentine and an aristocrat girl of blue blood antecedents. How he wins her against all the barriers of caste and tradition in the prime motivating force of the film. The picture is a musical presentation more than anything else and much of the action is told in song. John Carroll, a newcomer with a pleasing voice, plays the role of the wild pampas lover and he is aided by Steffi Duna and Rod La Rocque. "The Lone Wolf Returns" continues the eventful career of the world's most capable jewel thief, none other than that romantic rogue known as the Lone Wolf. This time he falls in love with a girl who collects costly jewelry as a hobby. He resolves to give up jewel snatching for the sake of this wealthy girl he loves but his former helpers bring the pressure to bear in an effort to make him steal the sparklers of the woman he loves. The cast offers Melvyn Douglas, Gail Patrick, Douglass Dumbrille, Tala Birell, Thurston Hall and Nana Bryant.

A SINGLE SIP PROVES IT!

Hollywood discussion runs high as to which of the six actress candidates deserves the Motion Picture academy award for 1935. Two of the sextet, Merle Oberon (left) and Elisabeth Bergner, are above. The others are Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins, Claudette Colbert and Katharine Hepburn.

Orpheum: "The Case of the Missing Man" and "The Throw Back." The main feature at the Orpheum is a neat little murder yarn with a new type of locale. It concerns a roving photographer, who accidentally snaps a picture of a hold-up man leaving the scene of his endeavors. In getting the picture, he also gets into a lot of trouble including a bad beating by members of the hold-up man's gang. The whole production is exciting and different in its treatment and Roger Pryor, Joan Perry, Arthur Hohl, Tommy Dugan, James Burke and Thurston Hall are featured. "The Throw Back" is the second full length attraction as well as the latest thrill drama starring Buck Jones.

Tomorrow
Broadway: Same.
Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Cappy Ricks Return" and "Men of Daring." The action character Peter B. Kyne made famous goes his pleasant way through the opening feature at the Orpheum, a story that tells in entertaining fashion the manner in which Cappy Ricks bests several of his business rivals. Robert McWade, Florine McKinney and Ray Walker are featured. "Men of Daring" is the other full length offering with Frankie Darrow.

ZENA

Zena, Feb. 18.—The school children closed up their books early on Monday afternoon and soon a gay Valentine party was in full swing. They were Carol Ann and Mary Lou Mehner, Barbara Ann Terwilliger, Emelie Holmumzer and Ann Corson. The party was to have been held on Friday, but due to the bad weather there was no school Friday afternoon.

The Christian Endeavorers were the guests of the young people of the Wurts Street Baptist Church of Kingston at a Valentine party on Monday. Thirteen of Zena's mem-

Pendergast Picks Landon To Win GOP Round But Not Election

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP).—Democratic guests as to who will be the G. O. P. presidential nominee were heard today along with a Republican senator's charge that New Dealers are "bunglers".

Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas was picked by Tom Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic chieftain, to win the Republican nomination but lose the election to President Roosevelt.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, however, would be the choice of Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director. If he were "making a book" on the nomination.

Pendergast declared back home that 19 Republicans are talking about Landon to one for other mentioned Republicans, but Michelson, down in Florida, predicted Landon "will fade" and the party will "settle down" on the Michigan senator.

Neither Vandenberg nor Landon has entered any state primary. Republican primary activity has been greatest so far in Illinois, where both Senator Borah of Idaho and Colonel Frank Knox of Chicago will meet their strength.

Republicans and Democrats both were active in New York.

Senator Dickinson of Iowa, who has disclosed presidential aspirations but said he will not enter any primaries, told the New York Young Republican Club last night that the New Deal had failed to solve the basic problems of recovery. His idea, he said, was to "throw the bunglers out."

He assailed the administration's fiscal policies, as has Colonel Knox many times, and declared that in the next election "we shall be holding them not our customary contest for office between parties, but a solemn referendum on the future of America."

On the Democratic front, there was considerable speculation about the significance of Alfred E. Smith's presence among the Tammany delegates to the Philadelphia convention in June.

Representative Fish (R-N. Y.), a supporter of Borah, remained angry over what he called the "steam-roller" tactics of the "Old Guard" in his state's organization. State Chairman Melvin Eaton, in answer to Fish, yesterday declared the slate of delegates-at-large chosen for the national convention at Cleveland was satisfactory to the rank and file of the party.

Fish seeking a slate favorable to Senator Borah, had charged that "Young Republicans" were given no recognition.

Politics at Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington, D. C.)

ONE interesting feature of the current political situation is that Mr. Roosevelt's opponents are making most of the noise.

Daily—sometimes at the rate of several a day—the big guns of the opposition are pouring their attacks on the White House. Now and then Democratic headquarters or some prominent Democrat replies, but for the most part the administration batteries remain silent.

Presumably this is a temporary situation only. With its array of experienced spellbinders, and its exceptionally well equipped publicity staff, it must be supposed that the Democratic organization will come into full action in due course.

There are reasons why, at this stage, it is quite natural for the Republicans to be more vocal than the Democrats. The G. O. P. is in the process of considering who shall be chosen to carry the party banner against Mr. Roosevelt; and each of the aspirants appears anxious to demonstrate how hard he can hit.

On the Democratic side there are reasons also. One of the most potent is the feeling among party leaders that it would be folly to shoot off too much ammunition before it is known who the opposing general will be, and what sort of battleline he will present.

Appears One-Sided
IF THE present political picture were judged without taking these things into account, it might be every word. No reply whatever, either private or public, was forthcoming.

Golden Silence

QUITE evidently the Roosevelt organization is relying on the soundness of two old political maxims.

One is that, in any political game, it is easy to overplay the hand. With the election still eight months away, say the Democratic strategists, a constant torrent of denunciation from the opposition may get to be an old story to the country, and have a natural kick-back.

The other maxim is that, in politics as elsewhere, silence often is golden in results. Calvin Coolidge ably demonstrated how golden it really can be. Governor Landon, among the several Republican candidates this year, manifestly is proceeding on the Coolidge theory as nearly as circumstances will permit.

There are Republicans who believe both of these maxims faulty; and for proof they point to the situation four years ago. Then it was the Democrats who began the bombardment long in advance and kept it up without decrease. It was the Republicans who sat back and waited—until it was too late.

So it is possible to draw any conclusion you desire.

MORE MONEY IN PARKING THAN OPERATING THEATRE

Chicago (AP).—There's more money in auto parking than in operating a theater these days in Chicago.

For the second time in recent years a theater is being raised to make way for a parking lot.

This time it's the Illinois theater, home of the "Follies" and the big musical extravaganzas of a decade ago. The old Cort theater in the heart of the Rialto district was expected to make room for an auto parking lot several years ago.

Some Farmers Free Of Mortgage Debt

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 20.—A study of farms to which power companies are extending their rural electric lines in Albany, Schoenectady, and Schoharie counties shows more than 70 per cent are free of all mortgage debt, said E. H. Thomson, president of the Federal Land Bank of Springfield, speaking at Cornell's Farm and Home Week.

"For the state as a whole, slightly more than half of the farms are owned free and clear by their operators," Mr. Thomson stated, emphasizing that the strong financial position of farmers in the areas studied is all the more remarkable since the farms are in communities where electric light companies have not felt justified in the past to extend their lines.

Current efforts by power companies and farm organizations to help more farmers obtain electric power led to the credit survey, the speaker said. "The survey covered 117 farmers of which 68 per cent will install electricity, according to statements given to the investigator. More than three-fourths of the number of farmers were in a position to pay for the installation themselves, or had friends or relatives who would help them. We found a distinct reluctance on the part of farmers to incur more debts."

KINGSTON FILING STATION ATTENDANT COMPLIMENTED.

The latest issue of "Scenes on Safety" compliments a Kingston filing station attendant, "Scott" Vining, of Port Ewen, as follows:

"Scott Vining of the Broadway-St. James street filing station, has been with the company for 16 years. In all that time he has performed his duties without a single accident. This is a record of which he may be justly proud, and one which makes accident prevention committees feel good. When asked what his formula for accident prevention is, he replied: 'I that he follows two good slogans: 'It is better to be sure than sorry, and 'Think before you leap.'"

"There must be something in these slogans as they have kept Scott from getting injured for 16 years. We hope he sticks to them just as successfully for many more years."

F. J. Tashner, formerly of Kingston, is chairman of the central accident prevention committee of Schoenectady.

Illustrated Talk On the Erie Canal

An illustrated talk concerning the history and development of the Erie Canal was the main feature of the Rotary Club program in the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday noon. The speaker, introduced by Walter Elston, of the club's program committee, was Bernard Feeney of the Reliance Marine Transportation and Construction Corporation.

Prior to the motion pictures that were given relative to the Erie Canal, the speaker discussed the background of the canal from the date of its beginning up through the present time. Mr. Feeney stressed the importance of the canal as a medium of cheap transportation and he gave the audience a list of figures showing the gross tonnage that moves through the canal from Buffalo to New York city in the course of a year's business. He also stated that the canal was of considerable business importance to Kingston as much of the repair work done in the Kingston boat yards was work on the barges and vessels which use the canal for transportation of goods.

Motion pictures showing the workings of the various locks in the canal system were also shown by Mr. Feeney and the pictures embraced a trip through the entire system, showing the changes of water levels, the methods of handling shipments and other interesting data.

Local Death Record

William N. Martin, former resident of Kingston, where for many years he was identified with the dry-goods business and for a long time was employed by the G. A. Hart & Company dry-goods store on Wall street, died last Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Hiseley, at Crosskill, N. J.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hannah Heppner were held yesterday afternoon at her residence, 26 Crane street. Many friends and relatives gathered to honor her memory as the Rev. Mr. Holdenreich, whose church Mrs. Heppner attended, conducted the services. With her sons acting as bearers the deceased was laid to rest next to her husband, Edward Heppner, in Montross Cemetery.

The body of James Mallico, who died at Bayonne, N. J., on Sunday after a short illness, was brought to the home of Mrs. McGinnis at Port Ewen by the N. D. J. Murphy Funeral Home, where the funeral was held on Wednesday at 9 a. m. and at the Church of the Presentation, where a high Mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of the soul by the Rev. Martin Leddy. The church was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends. At the conclusion of the services John Cullen rendered "Ave Maria." A profusion of beautiful floral offerings bespoke of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards were placed near the casket. The bearers were J. Hines, J. Tucker, R. Hayes, W. Hines, S. Murphy and B. Dempsey. Father Leddy accompanied the large funeral cortege to St. Mary's Cemetery, where the body was laid in its final resting place.

As for the political roadway, we'd say both the extreme right and the extreme left need to be curbed.

Drukman Murderers Given Stiff Prison Terms in Brooklyn

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 20 (AP)—A blue-ribbon jury early today convicted three defendants of murder in the second degree for the garaging of Samuel Drukman last March 2.

Supreme Court Justice Ettinger Rogers immediately sentenced the three men—Meyer Luckman, Harry Luckman and Fred Hull—to serve terms of from 20 years to life at hard labor in Sing Sing prison.

Expressionless, the three defendants heard sentence pronounced on them for strangling and beating Drukman to death in Meyer Luckman's garage, where the slain man, Luckman's brother-in-law, was an employee. They offered no defense witnesses.

They sobbed silently yesterday as their attorney, James I. Cuff, called the defendants martyrs to another political ambition. Cuff said the case was "a political football" and the prosecution was caused by "the greed and selfish desires of Joseph D. McGoldrick."

McGoldrick, unsuccessful candidate to unseat District Attorney William F. X. Googhan, charged in his campaign that the case had been "whitewashed" and the investigation mishandled.

Governor Herbert Lehman impaneled a special grand jury to sift all phases of the case including charges of bribery and intimidation and named a special judge and prosecutor for the trial.

Justice Rogers allowed the defendants a two-week stay of execution to put their business affairs in order.

The state charged that Drukman was slain, because he had been stealing from the Luckmans to pay gambling losses that ran as high as $500 a day on a $60 weekly salary.

Physical Tests for Paid Firemen Have Been Completed Here

Although No Official Report is Obtainable Until a Report is Submitted to Fire Commissioners It is Understood That All Except Three Passed Tests.

This week the members of the Kingston paid fire department were given physical tests and although it is impossible to ascertain the result of the tests until the physicians submit an official report to the Board of Fire Commissioners, it is understood that all of the men with the exception of three were successful in passing the physical examination. The names of the three men who are said to have failed in passing the tests were not obtained.

For the past year rumors have been current that the fire board planned to retire some of the older members of the department and replace them with younger men, and the first step in that plan was for the men of the department to be given a physical test as to their fitness physically to carry on the duties of a paid fireman.

It is expected that the report of the physicians will be submitted at the meeting of the fire board to be held later in the month.

The local civil service board last year held physical and mental tests and 50 applicants passed and are on the eligible list for fireman.

First PICK UP YOUR TELEPHONE
Second CALL 2-2-0-0
Third TELL AD-TAKER WHAT YOU WANT

There's no mystery or hocus-pocus about putting an ad in the Daily Freeman. It's as easy as falling off a log. You want to sell something or hire somebody or rent a room or find a job and the quickest, cheapest, surest way is with a Freeman Want Ad.

Pick up your phone, call 2200, and tell your story to the Ad Taker. She will write your ad for you on the spot. With short, easy-to-understand words she will save you money and get you more results from your ad. She will read your ad back to you over the phone for your O. K. Not a chance of a thing going wrong.

That's all there is to it. And if you are selling something that someone wants, or want something that somebody has—it's dollars to doughnuts you'll get results! Because the Daily Freeman reaches nearly everyone in Kingston and its environs. And because wise people turn to the Want Ads first!

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Jack Benny's going to try again. That is next Wednesday night he expects to show up in the WEAF-NBC Town Hall to be Fred Allen's guest. A week ago Benny was due in this program to return the visit Allen made to his broadcast last summer while both were in Hollywood. But Benny had to call things off at the last minute when a heavy cold put him to bed.

When Walter Johnston, famed as a baseball pitcher, seeks to throw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock river at Fredericksburg, Md., a CBS microphone will be on hand to record the event. Walter is attempting to equal the legendary feat of George Washington and at the same time win a $20 to $1 bet from Rep. Sol Bloom. Naturally, it is to be a Washington Birthday broadcast, microphone time being 2:15 p. m.

With Joe Cook as the opening guest on the new Olsen and Shuttie WEAF-NBC Saturday nights, the second program next week will present Kate Smith in that capacity.

FIRES HARASS NATION AS COLD WAVE CONTINUES

Sporadic blazes broke out in widely separated places throughout the nation as furnaces were turned on full blast to warm homes and places of business chilled by the frigid temperatures of the cold wave. Above: firemen in Detroit, their hoses and coats glazed with ice, battle to subdue a $100,000 fire at a grain company. Scores of firefighters suffered frost bite. (Associated Press Photo)

Police are shown mingling with strike pickets who jammed in front of Plant 2 of the Goodyear Rubber and Tire company at Akron, Ohio, forcing the company to suspend operations temporarily. Later the mass of pickets was reduced as subzero temperatures forced them to seek shelter. The company's Plant 1 operated on schedule. (Associated Press Photo)

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Feb. 20.—The Boy Scout Troop 19 of High Falls is planning a rather unusual food sale to be held this Saturday, February 22, in the post office building. Each scout in the troop is going to make something himself which will be offered for sale in addition to the foods donated by various members of the community. It is expected that many budding cooking geni will be discovered among the scouts. Part of the funds raised will help the troop to renovate the scout room and the rest will be put into the troop camp fund to send the boys to camp next summer.

The account of the severe weather causing such bad condition of the roads, Miss Ruth Stokes is staying with Mrs. Ella Church this week while attending Kingston High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis of Kingston called on her father, John H. Ayers, on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Kathryn Steen spent one night last week with her friend, Miss Emma Body, of New Paltz.

Mrs. Clarence Howard substituted for Mrs. Ernest Jansen last Monday Mrs. Jansen was called to Pennsylvania to attend the funeral of her stepfather.

The Ladies' Aid held a quilting bee in the basement of the church last week and also served dinner at noon. It was a great success and some were present from out of town. Everyone enjoyed the dinner and the social time and it was a financial success. The ladies wish to thank all who in any way helped the cause.

There have been a number of cases of mumps and whooping cough in the High Falls and Church has had a very small attendance at school. The children of the school are very much interested in reading and their teacher, Mrs. Church, has been drawing books for them from the Stone Ridge Library. This is a wonderful opportunity and a lovely thing for their teacher to do, showing her great interest in her pupils and her desire to encourage their love for good reading, which may have a great influence on their after lives and their present home life.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stokes and little daughter, Betty, who rented rooms in the house of Mrs. Ella Church have moved to Stone Ridge, where they are nearer to their work.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The stock market lost the last part of its punch today and turned irregular following a brief spell when rail shares braced the entire list.

Carriers were firm for the most part, and higher prices stood out here and there among the steel, motor and a fairly representative group of industrial specialties.

Power company shares were steady, but gains were limited. There were, however, enough losses here and elsewhere to stamp the market as irregular.

Both U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were about even and fractions were added to General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, United Corp., New York Central, Pennsylvania and Studebaker.

Greater gains were made in American Telephone, North American, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Johns-Manville, Corn Products, and International Cement.

Losses showed in United Aircraft, Douglas, Ingersoll, Westinghouse Electric, Electric Auto-Lite, Deere, Case, Commonwealth & Southern, Packard, Columbia Gas, and Great Northern Preferred.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 282 Wall street.

The fear has been expressed that the development of the agricultural cooperative movement will tempt the farmers to go into other lines of business—lines in which they are entirely inexperienced. Commenting on this, the head of one of the largest and most successful dairy co-ops in the nation said that there is no reason why any economic justification for farmers going into other lines of business should be made. The co-operative movement, he said, would be harmed and endangered.

Kingston Loses by 15-24 Score to N. Y. Jewels at the Auditorium

Kingston failed to score once from scrimmage for two whole periods. Frank Greenweck's Cities Service tossers to the New York Jewels, 15-24, Wednesday night before about 1,200 fans at the Municipal Auditorium.

In the parlance of football, the cities played like preliminary "stumblebums" in those early frames, flunking out time after time on their shots from the line and tossing away five chances of seven to gain a few points on the foul line. For the entire game, the Morgenweckers converted only five chances out of 13.

Kingston saved itself from complete humiliation by a rally in the last eight minutes of the closing period. Frank Shimek, about whose playing there has been considerable "gawking", and Hank Kurtyka, a prodigal son of "double contract", helped the situation to some degree by pumping in two fields apiece, the only duces made by the Morgenweckers for the whole game. Kurtyka did not get into the scramble until the closing frame, and Shimek went back in for the last time after being hauled out in the first period with four minutes left to play. Corky Stanton replaced him.

With Mac Kinsbrunner, their captain, showing the way with 12 points, the Jewels bore down all night, outscoring Kingston 16-2 for the periods.

Kinsbrunner was the only Jewel that scored in the last period, but he made four fields. Shimek and Kurtyka scored in the first period, and George Slott, who was next in line for the New York team, scored in the second period.

Next week the Jersey Reds will play Kingston at the Municipal Auditorium.

Kingston Makes Two
Slott's pushup for the Jewels was a first score of the game. Kinsbrunner was fouled by Husta and made it. Curly got the point back by a chance from the complimentary line. Then Russell took a pass from Slott and sunk a pushup and gave the New Yorkers another duce. Slott made another foul and the period ended 7-2 in favor of the Jewels.

Light after the second period ended, Mac Kinsbrunner caught a pass that Begovich threw the length of the court and dumped in a slaker into the basket. He picked up the point on a foul. Kintzing, a chance from the little stripe, blew it. Kinsbrunner dunked, then Russell picked up one.

He raced for the basket, but ran into Husta and Kintzing, and got an ankle. He made it. George Slott made a made after the Jewels had passed the ball around full two minutes without an attempt to score. The score was 12-2 in favor of the visitors with five minutes left to play. In this time Kinsbrunner and a field by Slott. The Jewels forward, a slacker, passed and pushed the ball in from under the basket. Stanton ended a foul. The period terminated 16-2, Jewels leading.

Shimek, Kurtyka Help
Shimek Kurtyka relieved Kintzing. Shimek went into the game for a field in the third period. Each of them scored. "Shimek" making six of the "Husta" four points. These made the only fields scored by Kingston, and their tally with a pass by Stanton gave the Gasoliers markers in the third stanza. A snack started off the point making the last from on a pushup, receiving a long pass from Kinsbrunner. Shimek arched a long one that didn't count because a pickoff from as he let it go. Kinsbrunner let one fly from the center of the court and in it went to make Jewels' total 20. He tried for another, but the ball stuck between Kinsbrunner and the backboard. Mac up for it, however, with a minute left to play. Kingston up. Shimek pumped in a long one, and two fouls. Kurtyka dunked on a free one. Stanton contributed fields, making Jewels' total 24. Kinsbrunner dunked in a duce for the Jewels. Slott flopped on another chance from the free stripe, then made good from the side of the field. He made one of two fouls and pushed one in under the hoop for Kingston's last shot and 15 points.

62 Major League Players Are Still Among the Holdouts

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—With the baseball caravans either heading for the grapefruit belt or forming on the left, ready for the take-off, a roll-call today disclosed at least 62 players have not yet signed 1936 contracts.

This represents only about 12 percent of the athletes on current major league rosters but it also indicates there has been much more haggling than usual with the bosses who sign the paychecks. Just how much of the argument over salaries is serious remains a matter for speculation.

Louder, if not the most serious of the holdout "squawks" has emanated from Jerome Herman Dean, who has, in this respect, assumed the ample garments once worn by George Herman Ruth. Both Deans are holdouts on the Cardinal list, which also includes Pepper Martin, but Dizzy's demand for $40,000, which would make him the top-salaried player in either big league, involves the juiciest controversy.

Many outstanding stars have not yet signed, although Arky Vaughan, the batting king, has just come to terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates, and comparatively few are considered serious holdouts. Paul Waner is understood to be the only recalcitrant among the Bucs while Augie Galan remains the only unsigned member of the championship Chicago Cubs.

Others conspicuously unsigned include Hank Leiber of the New York Giants, Hank Greenberg of the world champion Tigers, Van Mungo of the Dodgers and Babe Herman of the Reds. Among eight unsigned Yankees, Bill Dickey, Red Rolfe and Bon Chapman are rated the most stubborn contenders for more pay.

Budd Myer, the Senators' second base star and American League batting champion, apparently won't sign until he finds out how serious Owner Clark Griffith was about tagging him as worth $500,000, if sold to New York.

From Boston, where the Red Sox are supposed to be just one happy pennant-hunting family, comes word that Johnny Marcum, the big Kentucky pitcher, wants $10,000 instead of the $7,500 offered him. Zeke Bonura, first baseman, and Luke Sewell, catcher, both are reported to be demanding $15,000 from the White Sox. Last season Bonura drew $5,500 and Sewell $10,000.

It May Be Sentiment But Gabby Street Backs Walter Johnson

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20 (AP)—When it comes to throwing things, Charles (Gabby) Street today said he was perfectly willing to place his furies on his old battery mate, Walter Johnson.

So when the former speed ball star winds up on Washington's Birthday for an attempt to hurl a silver dollar across the Rappahannock river, Gabby will be counting on Johnson to fill the assignment.

"Maybe it's a case of too much sentiment with me in this instance," grinned Street, here to manage the St. Paul American Association Club, "but after working so closely for so many years with such a brilliant performer as Walter Johnson, one is inclined to back him in any reasonable throwing feat he might undertake, even now."

Gabby, who teamed with the "big train" for seven seasons, qualified his optimism with the reminder that Walter did his fire ball tossing over the 600 feet, one half mile route between the mound and home plate.

"That," said Street, "may be a difference with such a great distance involved. I understand the river is between 350 and 375 feet wide. For my own part, I know that I would be out of luck. I could plink second base, which is 120 feet from the plate, consistently and without any effort. But what I could have done, in my prime beyond that distance, certainly would have been problematical."

The former Washington Senators' star catcher reluctantly discussed his own historic act of catching a baseball dropped from the Washington monument way back in 1908. "That ball," he said, "was dropping 200 feet a second when it struck my mitt and it was plain luck that I caught it."

'One-Grand' Peak Scaled By Ute, With 1,000 Points In Mountain Court Race

Salt Lake City (AP)—Bill Kinner, brilliant center on the University of Utah quintet, has shot his way into the "one-grand" class, the select circle reserved for the few basketball players who have scored 1,000 points or more in collegiate competition.

Registering 30 points in a Rocky Mountain conference game against Utah State, Kinner ran his total up to 1,003. He added 21 points in two games with Brigham Young U. and 13 in another series with Utah State, and at the halfway station in the conference campaign had 1,037 points to his credit.

He's All-Star Center
The big Ute, all-conference center three years straight, averaged 12½ points in 83 games played since he first donned Utah togs.

He scored 144 points against conference opposition alone in 1933, 151 in 1934 and 169 in 1935 to win high-scoring honors each year for both divisions of the circuit. Many experts called him the finest basketball player in the mountain sector last season. In his first six conference games this season Kinner made 64 points.

Records disclose that only two other conference players ever passed the 1,000 mark. They are Elwood Romney of Brigham Young, with 1,213, and Les Witte of the University of Wyoming, with 1,050. Romney now is coaching Western State College, in the conference, and Witte is playing with an independent team in Denver.

Favors One-Hand Hook
The Utah center, after surpassing Witte's performance, said his favorite scoring play probably is a one-hand hook shot after a break across in front of the basket.

Although he is six feet three inches tall and springy-legged enough to hold his own with most college centers, Kinner sides with the agitators who are working for elimination of the center jumpoff play.

"It seems to cause so much confusion and fouling, not around the center circle, but between the centers themselves," he said.

Kinner thinks his best scoring performance was in a series with Montana State College when he sank 45 points in two games. He would like to try independent basketball after college, "provided I can get into a line of work I would care to continue in later life."

Kinner is 21 and weighs 170. His home is Ogden, Utah.

INDOOR SINGLES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS FEBRUARY 20
New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Three "first ten" luminaries and an invader from Sweden are among the stand-out entries for the men's national indoor singles tennis championships to be played in the Seventh Regiment Armory starting February 23.

Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., the 1935 winner, who ranks sixth in the nation, will defend with principal native opposition coming from Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., No. 3, and Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., No. 9.

Two other outstanding domestic entries are Henry Culley of Santa Barbara, Calif., ranked 14th, and 128½, Worcester, defeated Joe Mar. Frank Bowden of New York. Bowden is far down the national list but is a formidable player on boards.

In the final, Miss Pedersen again will be a contender, as will Dorothy Andrus of New York and Norma Tanabe of New York, a former champion.

Woodstock Needs Snow for Skiing Contest

Woodstock, Feb. 20.—Arnold Wiltz, in charge of the ski races scheduled to take place on Sunday, February 23, announces that if there is no snow before that date the races will be postponed to the following week-end. In its present icy condition the ski hill is too dangerous for the proposed events. The toboggan slide, however, is in excellent condition.

Besides the combined event and novice race there will be a barrel race open to all children under 14 years of age. The prize for this last event will be a pair of skis with binding.

There have already been over 100 reservations made in Woodstock for the week-end's sports activities.

"WHY WE SWITCHED"

The overwhelming preference of smokers for Bayuk PHILLIES can mean only one thing. They want Long-filler Havana in their cigars—and they want it blended with fine, ripe Domestic.

That's what PHILLIES gives them for 5c... the same exact blend that made this cigar, at 10c, the choice of more men than any other 10c brand in America.

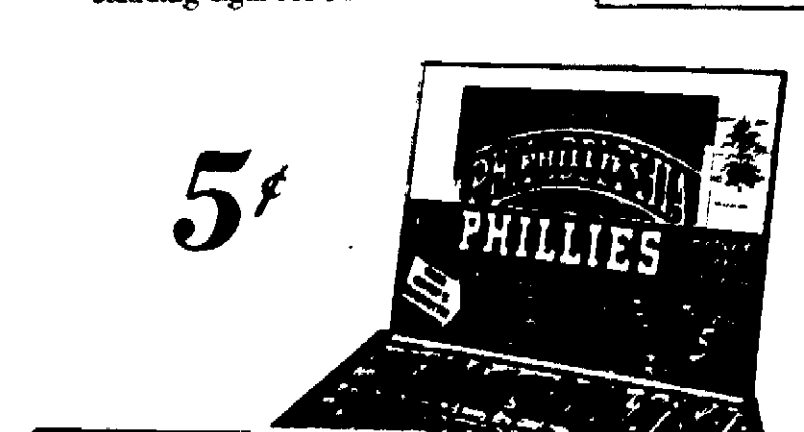

No tobaccos used in ordinary 5c cigars ever get into PHILLIES. When you next step up to a cigar counter—try PHILLIES. You'll learn why millions are switching to this outstanding cigar for 5c.

Like most smokers, I want Havana flavor in a cigar—and I get it in PHILLIES for only 5c.

PHILLIES exactly suits my taste. It's mild—yet has that smooth, rich Havana flavor I like.

Salvation Army Nets 2,053 in Drive to Date As Funds Are Sought

The grand total of the Salvation Army campaign was raised to $2,053 by the workers reported yesterday noon at the daily luncheon.

In the Women's Division Team No. 9, Mrs. Frederick Richens, captain, won the banner for high team for the day with a total report of $5.30. Team No. 11, Mrs. Chauncey S. Main, was high team to date. In the Men's Division, Team No. 10, Howard R. St. John, captain, won the banner in that division for the day with $45.25, and was also high team to date.

The winning teams received the banners from N. LeVan Haver, general chairman of the campaign committee, who presided.

Friday noon will be the most important day of the entire campaign when all team captains and all team workers are expected to be present. Members of the general committee are also expected to attend on this occasion as a very special meeting of that committee will be held in connection with the noon luncheon. Friday noon the campaign will have progressed far enough so that the outcome will be known and definite plans can then be made as to what can be done to complete the work.

In spite of treacherous walking the faithful workers in the women's and men's divisions are persisting in their task to call at every home, store and office in the entire city this week. Because of the very inclement weather conditions it now seems certain that some friends of the Army will be missed, although it is not the intention to miss anyone. Every subscription is needed and all of those who have not been called upon by this time are requested to bring or send their subscription to campaign headquarters, 94 North Front street, before Friday noon. One credit will be given the subscriber for the territory from which subscriptions come. Pledges must be paid at the time during the campaign. Every dollar counts and Edward H. Remmert, campaign treasurer, points out the fact that larger pledges payable at a deferred date are preferable to small cash subscriptions paid now.

This very severe winter with its persistent cold has greatly increased the Army's work in Kingston and is another reason that the very modest target of $5,000 which is now being sought shall be fully raised this year.

Camp Meetings. The mid-winter, camp meetings being held in the Salvation Army are full swing. This is the closing week. Friday night a record crowd is expected to attend to hear a group of singing people from Saugerties, who will have charge of the service. Social music will be heard each evening by local talent, also by the Salvation Army Band. The public is invited to come to these services which begin at 8 sharp.

Sheffield Ware Popular Before Electro Plating

Sheffield ware antedates the development of electro-plating and has a fascinating sort of history of its own.

It is a process that has not been used since about 1850, but was used for more than 100 years prior to that date to make fine table silverware and other art objects, states a writer in the Atlanta Constitution.

To make Sheffield ware the artisan took two ingots of silver and placed a bar of copper between. The three blocks were pressed together as tightly as possible with twisted wire and then placed in a welding oven. The worker watched through a window in the door and at the exact moment of fusing withdrew the metal. This had to be at just the right moment or the job was ruined.

The fused block was then pressed out, between heavy rollers, to the exact thickness desired, giving a sheet of metal, copper in the center and silver on either side.

The artist then engraved his designs, many of them exquisitely beautiful, on the silver coating and the edges were covered with other silver to hide the copper layer.

Sheffield ware had been less expensive than solid silver up to about 1850, but a reduction in the cost of silver at that time made it cheaper to use the pure metal than to follow the expensive process of making Sheffield ware. Also, about that time, the much easier and far less expensive electro-plating process was developed to where it was practical.

Parson of Pinhoe Still Receives English Pension

It is more than 900 years ago since the delighted King Ethelred granted an annual pension of one mark to the Parson of Pinhoe and his successors forever.

But every year since then the English king's word has been honored, observes a London writer.

The pension originated in the year 1001 when the Danes, landing at Exmouth, made a fierce attack on the army of Ethelred. At the height of the battle, the English discovered that their stock of arrows was almost exhausted.

To beat the Danes they must obtain fresh supplies. Where were they to come from?

Up spoke the bluff parson of the little village of Pinhoe. "Give me a horse and I will ride into Exeter and bring you all the arrows you need."

They gave him the horse and, furiously covering the two miles into Exeter, he fulfilled his promise. That load of arrows turned the tide of battle.

Since then more than forty kings or queens have ruled England, but Ethelred's promise has been kept by all his royal successors.

Irish Celtic in Origin

The Irish people, while a mixture of races, are largely Celtic in origin, descended from the Celts, part of the great Aryan race which swept over Europe many centuries before the Christian era. They are not Semitic in origin. There are various traditions and poetic fables to account for the early inhabitants of Ireland, before the Celtic invasion. Constantia Maxwell's Short History of Ireland refers to the legends of invasions and colonizations by five different peoples, the Partholoniens, Nemiedians, Firbolgs, Dedanians and Milesians. The Milesians, last of the Celtic-speaking colonies to come to Ireland, are supposed to have arrived between 1700 and 1000 B. C., from Scythia, through Thrace, Egypt, Gothland, Britain and Spain.

L. K. Rhinelander Dies Of Pneumonia Today

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, 34-year-old scion of a wealthy and socially prominent family whose court struggles to rid himself of his part-negro wife were international sensations, died today of pneumonia at the Long Beach (Long Island) home of his father, Philip Rhinelander.

"I never loved anybody else—anybody but Leonard, and I never will love anybody else," said his divorced wife, Alice Jones, when she learned of the death of Rhinelander. It recalled her statement when a White Plains (N. Y.) jury refused to grant Rhinelander an annulment in 1925.

"I always loved Leonard," the daughter of a negro taxi-cab driver, said then.

Rhinelander, then 22, married her in 1924. The Patriotic circles into which he was born were startled at the union.

The bride was a servant, years older than Rhinelander. Slightly more than a month after the marriage, Rhinelander left his bride and immediately sought annulment of the union on the ground that his wife had deceived him regarding her negro blood.

Following sensational proceedings in a White Plains court, a jury, while not empowered to pass on granting the annulment, defeated young Rhinelander's case by deciding that his wife had not deceived him—that he would have married even had he known of her origin.

ELKS TO HOLD WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY PARTY AND DANCE

On Saturday evening, Washington's Birthday, February 22, a holiday party and dance will be held in the assembly hall at the Elks' Club on Fair street. This party and dance is arranged by the house committee, and the Elks are privileged to invite their non-Elk friends. The dances at the Elks' Club are very popular, and a large attendance of Elks and their friends is anticipated.

There will be a floor show featuring a juvenile revue in a presentation of a "Parade of Hits" of the future stage and screen stars. A tasty lunch will be served during the evening. Music for dancing will be furnished by the Columbian Entertainers.

Lounsberrys On Helpless Steamer

Attorney LeRoy Lounsberry and Mrs. Lounsberry of Ellenville are passengers aboard the Furness liner Nova Scotia, enroute from a West Indies cruise to New York. The Nova Scotia with 110 passengers and a crew of 85 sent out an SOS call last night from a point 600 miles off Florida stating that the ship had dropped its propeller and was helpless in a storm. Several ships, including the Monarch of Bermuda, started to the disabled craft but later a message was sent out stating that the Eastern Prince was on her way to the assistance of the Nova Scotia and would arrive this morning. Other ships were directed to continue their courses and the Eastern Prince was expected to take the Nova Scotia in tow.

Bactrian Camel, Central Asia's Beast of Burden

Quite a lot of people think that camel with two humps is not a camel at all but a "dromedary." This is not so. The two-humped animal, which for many centuries has been the mainstay of Central Asian transport, is the Bactrian camel, states a writer in the Montreal Herald.

It is shorter in the leg and has stouter and harder feet than its relations in warmer climates, and its thick hair enables it to withstand the bitter winds and icy cold of winter in Central Asia.

The dromedary is a name given to the swift riding camel of Arabia and North Africa to distinguish it from the ordinary pack-carrying camels so familiar to us in pictures of caravans.

Speaking generally, the two-humped animal is found in cold climates and the one-humped in warmer regions, such as Arabia, North Africa, Sahara, Egypt, Sudan, etc. Both kinds have the same well-known capacity of storing water, a quality that makes them invaluable in regions where wells and oases may be hundreds of miles apart. A dromedary will keep a steady eight to ten miles an hour across shifting, burning desert sand, and, by absorbing the nutriment in its hump and drawing on its reserves of water, is able to continue for an extraordinary length of time.

Mrs. Meador Weds Wyoming Cowhand

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 20 (AP)—Records disclosed today that a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Anne Meador, 22, was married here last Saturday to a cowboy, Herman H. Elsbury, 24, Cody, Wyo.

Her name is the same as that of Mrs. Anne Meador, New York heiress, who obtained a divorce in Texas last week from Frank Meador, San Antonio bank clerk. She gave her address as Hollywood, Calif.

The couple was married by the Rev. John C. Blackman of the Congregational Church after the Rev. Charles A. Bennett, an Episcopal minister, said he refused to perform the ceremony because Mrs. Meador disclosed she had been divorced recently in Texas.

Mrs. Bennett said today he had "heard since the marriage" that Mrs. Meador was a member of the New York Gould family.

Four Auto Dealers Attend State Meeting

Four local automobile dealers attended the meeting of the Empire State Automobile Merchants Association and the National Automobile Dealers' Association held at Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany on Wednesday. From Kingston, Leon Chambers, Abel Abernethy, Roy M. Suttill represented the Kingston dealers, and Gordon Jansen of Ellenville represented the dealers in that section of the county. There were about 200 dealers in attendance, representing the eastern section of New York state.

The idea of the meeting was to discuss the used car problem, one of the toughest problems which automobile dealers have to face today. Cooperation of manufacturers in a plan to hold down losses on used cars is the aim of the dealers.

At the rally and meeting held Wednesday, speakers emphasized the need of united action to control losses from trade-ins and used car resales which were estimated at $150,000,000 on a nationwide scale last year.

Despite greater sales, dealers of the country reaped fewer profits in 1935, Edward Payton, a business analyst, told the dealers.

John R. Walker of Chicago, vice president of the National Association of Sales Finance Companies, proposed that his organization and the dealers join in placing themselves much in the same position with reference to used cars that the manufacturers occupy with reference to new cars.

William B. Burruss, sales analyst, told the dealers that "no individual dealer can win in a battle against the combined strength of the manufacturers."

Gloves Long in Use

Gloves are very ancient articles of dress. Clumsy but serviceable leather gloves, sewn with leather thread, have been found among the relics of cave dwellers. The ancient Greeks used them to protect the hands while doing heavy work, and the Romans wore them as ornaments and a mark of rank. Northern nations always protected their hands more or less, by gloves or otherwise, against winter cold, but gloves did not become with them as important articles of dress until the development of the custom of carrying a pet falcon on the wrist. They began then to be made in most elaborately ornamented and embroidered forms. A guild of glove makers was organized in France as early as 1190.

12 Below Zero Today In Sections of City, Warmer Weather Due

Predictions of warmer weather today did not prevent the weather men having one final fling early this morning. The thermometers in various sections of the city registered a dozen degrees below zero at 8 o'clock this morning and in some sections recordings were reported as low as 20 below. At 9 o'clock this morning thermometers on Wall street were five below but promise of warmer weather cheered those who were compelled to get out in the sub-zero weather.

Fortunately Kingston has escaped any serious fire during the severe cold snap which has been almost continuous for the past month. Fires caused by overheated furnaces and stoves during extreme weather frequently take heavy toll. A shortage of fuel which has become acute in many sections of the country also was not felt in Kingston.

With a forecast of warmer weather over the week-end it is expected that there will be a large number of winter sports enthusiasts in the Catskill sport centers. Saturday being Washington's birthday, a holiday observed in many lines of business in greater New York, it is expected many will come up Friday evening or Saturday morning and remain over the week-end. Already a number of reservations have been made at both Phoenicia and at Woodstock where winter sports are having their first season.

Much Food in Sea

Scientists say that if ever the food supply of the world peters out, it will be possible to live in perfect health on marine products. The sea has an illimitable supply of edible matter in the form of fish as well as vegetation, and sufficient minerals to enable our industries to continue indefinitely. Today, almost the only vegetable foods we get from the sea are in the form of seaweeds, which are extremely nutritious. A recent analysis of dried kelp shows it to have a total mineral content of 35 per cent, and the elements in it are chlorine, potassium, sodium, calcium, sulphur, magnesium, phosphorus, iodine, iron, manganese, and copper. Spectrographic analysis has revealed that there are other minerals, but in exceedingly minute quantities. —Tit-Bits Magazine.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman Returns Home Sunday

Unless Mayor C. J. Heiselman changes his plans he will return to Kingston on Sunday after spending two weeks with his wife at Palm Beach, Florida. Word received from the mayor states that he and his wife have been enjoying their vacation, and that he has received a fine sunburn from lying on the sands of the beach.

During the absence of the mayor from the city, President John Schwenk of the Common Council has been serving as acting mayor.

Invented Steel Pen

The machine-made steel pen was invented in England about the year 1822, though hand-made steel pens had been made a few years before this. The quill-shaped slip pen on holder dates from about 1832. The first American steel pens were made by Richard Esterbrook in his factory at Camden, N. J., in 1838. While the steel pen soon replaced the quill for business and general use, a great many people held to the old fashioned pen for many years, for sentimental or personal reasons.

Cats and Rats

Cats play an important part in keeping down hordes of mice and rats that might overrun the world. In Hongkong, it is obligatory for each household to keep a cat. The Japanese fought bubonic plague with a shipment of cats from the United States. In the national printing office of France cats are kept on the pay roll to keep rats from eating valuable papers. In the annual expenditure for post office provision is made for cats.

SNOWBOUND TOWN GETS FOOD AFTER MONTH

Here are a few chilled residents of Hatfield, Mo., snowbound for more than a month, as they greeted the arrival of the first load of food to reach the town since abnormally high snows blocked all surrounding roads, making them impassable. The food arrived only after a sled driver battled against terrific difficulties to get through, just as supplies were running low. (Associated Press Photo)

Entertainment at St. John's.

The members of the Sunday School of St. John's Episcopal Church will give an entertainment at the church house Friday night at 7:45. There will be a varied program, the main feature being moving pictures of the church school and church members taken on Ester Sunday and at the annual picnic at Golden Rule Inn. A nominal admission will be charged.
